LIEUT -COM. REEVES IS FIT. Retiring Board Say He Is Able to Per form Any Duties Assigned to Him.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.-Lieutenan Commander Joseph Mason Reeves, U. S. N., ordnance officer of the Atlantic fleet, one of the younger officers of the navy, probably will escape retirement for physical disability in spite of the fact that he was unable to complete the fifty-mile walking endurance test on account of a weak heart. He completed forty miles but could go no further. He was ordered before a retiring board to determine whether or not his physical condition was such as to permit him to remain on active service. The medical members of the board who examined him reached the conclusion that he was physically able to perform any naval fact that he was unable to complete the physically able to perform any naval duties that may be assigned to him, and it is likely that he will be allowed to remain on the active list.

Lieutenant-Commander Reeves has dis-He was advanced three numbers for faithful service as an assistant engineer on the battleship Oregon on its 13,000-mile cruise from the Pacific coast to Jupiter Inlet, Fla., just prior to the Spanish-American War. In target work he was made ordnance officer of the Asiatio fleet in 1905 because of an unusually excellent record of the 13-inch turret of the battleship Wisconsin, of which he was turret officer. Incidentally he was famous as an athlete while at the Naval Academy. His weak heart is supposed to be due to over-exertion in athletics.

NAVAL REORGANIZATION.

Plan to Weed Out Inemcient Officers Is

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.-The plan for the reorganization of the navy, which is cted to keep and advance the best officers in the service and which will remove those who have been proved inefficient without the wait now necessary for retirement, has been perfected and will be submitted to President Taft within a few days. The President referred to the needed reorganization of the navy in his annual message and is known to tin his annual message and is known to favor the scheme which has been drafted, although he desires to look into the details before he passes upon it finally.

Under the present plan, which has been worked out by Capt. Roy Smith of the General Board at the direction of Secretary Meyer, officers will be promoted from grade to grade after a service of a fixed number of years in each grade irrespective of whether there are any vacancies or not. If by such promotions there are more officers in any one grade than the tonnage and boats of the navy demand then a "plucking board" will weed out the necessary number, choosing those who are least efficient. Officers in the lower grade who are weeded out will be retired on one-quarter, one-third or one-half pay, while those in the higher grades will be retired on three-quarters pay as at present.

The new plan it was said will not cost grades will be retired on three-quarters pay as at present.

The new plan, it was said, will not cost any more than does the present one because more officers will be retired at the smaller rates and less at three-quarters pay. Officers between the ages of 35 and 62 will come within the scheme. All grades from that of Lieutenant-Commander up will be affected.

THE COST OF LIVING. President Taft Favors the Plan for an Investigation by Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. - Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, who has in-troduced a resolution calling for the creation of a commission to investigate the cost of living, had a talk with President Taft to-day on that subject, and said afterward that the President was heartily in favor of such an investigation. The President thought that since every man in the country was interested it was well worth a Congressional probe. He favored a commission of seven members, and consequently Senator Fikins will probably amend his resolution in that opportunities are not more frequent."

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, who has been in a state of passive revolt ever since the rules row in the House at the beginning of the special tariff session of Congress and in which he took an active part, smeared himself with war paint again to-day and is now whoopwar paint again to-day and is now whooping it up as lively as ever. The report around the Capitol was that Mr. Garnde subsided and endeavored to call the other insurgents off when he was assured by Speaker Cannon's friends that Mr. Cannon was about ready to quit and would make public an announcement to that effect luring the Christmas holidays. But when Mr. Cannon didn't come out with any such announcement Mr. Gardner, according to the rest of this rumor, wavered in his passiveness and was thrown on the in his passiveness and was thrown on the active list again by the developments of last Friday, when the organization was well chastened. Now Mr. Gardner is of the opinion, his friends and cohorts say, that there is no chance for the Speaker to get out at present—the time having passed when he could do that gracefully—and so Mr. Garnder might as well get busy and tir up as much trouble as possible.
"But," says Mr. Gardner with emphasis. "I am not even remotely opposed in a personal way to Mr. Cannon, but merely to the system under which this House is run."

In which incidentally Mr. Gardner differs with some others of the insurgents who have been storing up pique and nurs-ing open wounds inflicted by the Speaker and who would like very well to see him burned to death at the political stake.

The insurgents held a meeting to-night at the home of one of them and talked over the statement purporting to have been issued by the Republican Congres-sional committee, but which Vice-Chair-man Tawney says he never saw and which Mr. Taft is now understood not to have graced with his () K. Several of them expressed the opinion, which all seemed to share, that if as reported Chairman McKinley and Representative Loudenslager had put out this get out of the party state-ment without consulting their colleagues it would do a whole lot to irritate memberwho are now wavering between love and luty, between allegiance to the Cannon duty, between allegiance to the cannon cause through the memory of past favors and a desire to boit the reservation and save their political existence and bring them into the insurgent camp.

The House organization claims to be worrying not a little bit, but is certain that the insurgents and Democrats will be defeated on the next test vote and confident that the President is backing unfident that the President is backing unfident that the President is backing up Mr. Cannon and his friends.

"Wait until next time." they say with confidence, "and we will be there with balls on."

It is reported here that newspapers in the district represented by Representa-tive Bernard of Indiana have threatened to steal his scalp unless he gets in line with the insurgents. Incidentally Mr. Bernard hails from the district which has the honor to contain that ready letter writer. William Dudley Foulke. It is supposed that Mr. Foulke has been putting pen to paper recently. Mr. Bernard declined to talk about the report to-night.

That President Taft has undergone some change of opinion in regard to who are his friends and who are not among the Republicans in Congress is pretty generally believed in Washington. He is reluctant to take sides in the Congress situation, but it is realized that party Infantry, to his regiment.

may be maintained. In other words, the party as a whole must stand for party legislation, and each member of it in the White House, in the Senate and in the House of Representatives must assume his share of responsibility.

The Republican regulars and a good many Republicans who had been classed as insurgents voted for the bill as a part measure in spite of their dissatisfaction with some of its provisions. President Taft, dissatisfied in the same way, approved the bill as a party measure. But

Taft, dissatisfied in the same way, approved the bill as a party measure. But a group of insurgents in the House and a smaller group of insurgents in the Senate voted against the bill and have spent much of their time since then in criticising it. These insurgents, according to the view held in Administration circles and among the regulars at the circles and among the regulars at the Capitol, sought by their action to evade capitol, sought by their action to evade a responsibility which rested on them. As some of the regulars put it, these insurgents regarded themselves as bigger than their party.

This attitude of the insurgents has angered the Administration and the Republican Congress leaders, and it is apparent that the time is approaching when the recalcitrants will either have to show a better party spirit or be left outside the party breastworks.

Two things occurred to-day which indicate the trend Republican party affairs are taking. One concerned the House of Representatives and the other concerned the Senate. In the House the insurgents figuratively went up in the air over the reported action of Representative Dwight of New York, the Republican whip, in striking the names of confirmed insurgents from the lists of those Republican Representatives to be notified to be at hand in the House when a solid party vote was regarded as necesary. that common carriers must impose only just and reasonable charges and regulations without additional legislation. That has been conclusively settled by experience.

"Lately the carrier has seen fit to contest practically every order made by the commission, and cases have been taken into various Federal courts. Judges of these courts, being unfamiliar with this class of cases and having besides much other work on hand, have not been able to dispose of commerce cases as expeditiously as the needs of the country in the freight on the freight. This is assuming a property right in the consignment which the carrier does not possess, and the shippers should have, except in exceptional cases, to be provided for by the commission, the right to route his freight.
